MISS DOMINION OF CANADA VISITS COLEMAN CARNIVAL

Lana Drouillard, the present Miss Dominion of Canada, is a blue-eyed brunette from Windsor, Ontario, known as Canada's most beautiful representative.

Since a distinguished panel of judges selected her as the most beautiful girl in Canada, Miss Drouillard has been busy travelling throughout Canada, the United States and abroad.

Miss Drouillard, a 21 year old teacher and professional model, won the title of Miss Dominion of Canada while representing Windsor, Ontario. Within hours after her selection as Miss Dominion of Canada, Miss Drouillard was besieged with telegrams and telephone calls from all parts of Canada. Miss Drouillard, prior to becoming Miss Dominion of Canada, held the title of Miss Windsor Jaycee.

She annually represents Canada in the Miss Universe Pageant held in Miami Beach, Florida, USA, the Miss World Pageant held in London, England, the Queen of the Pacific Pageant in Melbourne, Australia and the Miss International Pageant held in Tokyo.

An irresistible smile, a perfectly proportioned figure, 5'4" and 115 lbs., along with a lively personality won her the title Miss Dominion of Canada before television and motion picture cameras and media from throughout Canada.

Miss Drouillard has an older sister and was born in Windsor, Ont. Prior to being Miss Dominion of Canada, Miss Drouillard was a teacher of typing and shorthand. She enjoys horseback riding and all types of sports as well as her school.

Her story is so typical of the contestants competing during the two year history of the Miss Dominion of Canada Pageant held annually in Niagara Falls at the Sheraton Brock Hotel.

MISS DOMINION OF CANADA, Lana Drouillard of Windsor, Ont., receives a pointing from Coleman councillor, Mrs. Emily Misura on behalf of the citizens of the Crownsnest

Many Topics Discussed At Local Council Meetings

MARCH 28
Annual ratepayers meeting was held in the Coleman central school auditorium. Mayor Holyk was elected chairman and John Kapalka as secretary for this meeting.

There were approximately 30 interested ratepayers that attended and wanted to know how their dollars were spent.

The financial statements of the Coleman Light and Water Co., Coleman Natural Gas System and the Town of Coleman were adopted.

Reports were given from the chairmen on the following committees: finance, police and fire dept., public works, building, health and welfare, parks, cemetery and sports.

A municipal inspector's report was read, and with the exception of a few minor corrections, the town was satisfactorily administered and in a good financial position.

A note of confidence was given Mayor Holyk and councillors.

The ratepayers requested information re the service, or lack of it, by the recreation board given to the Town of Coleman.

A lengthy discussion ensued and views were expressed pro and con of how activities operated before and after a recreation director was hired.

There were many complaints expressing the inability to contact the director, especially when the figure skating club held their ice carnival at "Miss Dominion of Canada", Lana Drouillard of Windsor, Ont., consented to attend.

The regular meeting was rescheduled for the following evening. The budget of the recreation board was again presented to the council and was defeated.

Permission was given to Mr. J. Aschacher to have his trailer placed on Mrs. Garner's lot.

Town is interested in purchasing a new loader, as they feel with the development of the sub-division, their old one would be inadequate.

Letters were sent to the various concerns for the prices and trade-in appraisal of the old loader.

There was some discussion regarding sidewalks. No doubt some work will be done on this during 1972.

Chairman J. Rejman of the sports committee requested the town to advertise for an estimate for the arena roof, lights and painting in the new sub-division.

PREVENTIVE SOCIAL SERVICES

One of the things that I like about my job is the involvement it gives me with people. Through the many community projects which make up the Preventive Social Service program, I meet a wide variety of people. But the most meaningful encounters with people I believe come through the counselling situation.

Since its beginning in 1968, Preventive Social Service has operated a counselling service for families and individuals in the Crownsnest Pass. So that people who have problems in coping with life and relating to other people can receive help in understanding their problems and taking some action to solve them for the various sessions.

What is the nature of the help offered? First of all, it should be said that it is not an advice giving service. Generally speaking in the area of interpersonal problems, very few people appreciate advice and fewer still will act upon it. Besides this, if a counsellor gives you some advice on how to solve your problems it is the counsellor's solution to the problem, not yours.

If a solution to a problem is going to be real, it must be based on insight arrived at by the client and a decision which he alone is responsible for. The counsellor's role is to help the client see himself as he is and guide him to the position where he will feel motivated to do something which will alleviate his problems.

The counselling session then is a type of encounter between the client and the counsellor where the counsellor tries to give the client some honest feedback, to him as a person. Concentrating more on the feelings that the client is experiencing rather than trying to analyze the interpersonal problems, the goal of this counselling method is growth through change.

Cardinal Newman once said that "to grow is to change and to have changed often is to have grown much." The aim of our counselling service is to help people open up to growth, so that they can act on their own.

Some people wait for the crisis to occur before they look for help. At this point, it is not a case of counselling; but of crisis intervention. All that can be done is to help the person pick up the pieces and make the necessary adjustments. The saying is a true one, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

If you wish to make use of our community counselling service, come to our office located downstairs in Michael Finn's Pharmacy in Blairmore or telephone our Preventive Social Service office at 562-2331.

Course Marriage

A seven week course called Married Life will be offered by Preventive Social Service. The course will be open to two types of couples: (1) those who are preparing for marriage and (2) those who are already married and would like to enrich their marriage relationship.

The course will make use of local resource people who will offer the leadership for the various sessions. The session schedule is as follows: April 18-Exploring Your Differences.

April 23-Making Contact.

April 30-To Be Alone.

May 7-Sexual Intimacy - Parenthood.

May 14-A Place To Live.

May 21-A Sign of Love.

May 28-Final session - all leaders present-wind up.

The sessions will be held on Sunday afternoon from 3:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m., at the Crownsnest Consolidated High School.

Plans were approved for the home of the Lant-Belleore home in the new sub-division.

Council felt their insurance should be up-graded, especially the life insurance.

By-law 422 was given the first and second reading for the closing of lanes where the new shopping centre will be built. All the little technicalities are being ironed out before the date of the sub-division will be announced.

Report From

PARLIAMENT HILL

ALLEN SULATYCKI
M.P.

... Rocky Mountain

The bill to amend the Canadian Labour Code has been amended and re-submitted to parliament.

Under the bill, unions would have the right to apply to the Labour Relations Board to re-open negotiations if the employer introduced extensive technological change during the term of the agreement, without giving adequate notice.

In certain cases unions would be able to negotiate, and acquire the right to strike, during the life of an agreement. The requirements leading to this situation, however, are precisely defined.

Thus, the provisions would not apply in cases where the employer had given prior notice before the closed period of the contract, where the employer and union had taken matters into their own hands and set out in their agreement procedures for negotiating the effects of change, or where the agreement already stipulated provisions to assist affected employees.

The Labour Relations Board would become a full-time job and the members would no longer be representatives of employers and employees. Added to its traditional functions of determining bargaining units and certifying bargaining agents, would be jurisdiction over unfair practices, and problems arising from successor rights and technological change.

On another subject, bargaining rights would be extended to provisional employees, who have tended to be in a no man's land between organized employees and managers.

The bill would strengthen and extend provisions regarding unfair practices, which would be allocated by the Labour Relations Board, instead of going before the courts. Unfair practice provisions would be extended, affording increased protection for employers, unions, employees, and union members.

Finally, the role of the arbitrator would be strengthened, and steps taken to protect his decisions from excessive judicial review.

The bill is part of a continuing effort by the government to encourage free collective bargaining and positive dispute settlement.

Our READERS Say

The Editor,
Coleman Journal,
Coleman, Alberta.

Dear Sir:

Although many may not realize it, the members of the Crownest Pass figure skating club do not only belong to a form of recreation but also are taxpayers, who help to foot the bill for the recreation director's wages. And as such, we would like to inform you that ever since recreation has existed, we have not received any co-operation whatsoever. We haven't had any financial help, publicity or promotion at all from this source.

On the contrary, the recreation department has proven hostile towards our organization. How much ice time does curling and hockey receive? How much is organized and promoted for these recreations by the recreation director? How much of the same is used for skating and other activities? How much of the $9,000 yearly in pay for the director's time is used for us? None! If we want ice time, we fight for it. Are we not considered recreational? Perhaps the provincial government might think differently.

The Crownest Pass figure skating club involves lots of hard work and effort on the part of its members, to offer our community a pleasant performance once a year. Under the circumstances we see no reason whatsoever why our club is not entitled to one day yearly — free from other performances arranged by the recreation director.

When members of the recreational board are approached concerning these matters, we are more or less told point blank — this is tough luck! Every other recreational facility in the Pass counts first, we don't count at all.

Due to the fact that the recreational department wished to treat us in this manner we have no alternative except to seek the signatures of our present and past members of the club and refer our dilemma to the provincial government.

—Crownest Pass

New Succession Duty Act In B.C.

The B.C. government evidently believes a broad base for taxation is the most suitable method to raise the funds necessary to carry out essential services provided by government. The government considers succession duties must form a part of this base in respect of B.C.'s more wealthy citizens, but that exemptions be provided of sufficient worth to eliminate that vast majority of citizens from having to pay any succession duties whatsoever. The legislation raises the basic succession duty exemption for special beneficiaries (husband, wife, father, mother, grandfather, grandmother, child, grandchild, son-in-law, daughter-in-law) from $60,000 to a minimum of $150,000.

Including the important measures contained in this bill, the following are the main exemptions now provided, for example, for a spouse:

- (1) An outright exemption of $125,000.
- (2) An additional exemption of the value of the family home.
- (3) An additional exemption of up to $25,000 of life insurance.
- (4) An additional exemption of up to $250 a month pension.
- (5) An exemption in any event of at least $150,000.

This means, for instance, a husband could leave a $40,000 home; $25,000 insurance, other properties to the value of $125,000 and $250 a month pension to his spouse, which, if she were aged sixty, would be valued at $33,832.50, or a total estate of $223,832.50 and no British Columbia succession duty would be payable.

A minimum $150,000 exemption is proposed to apply for bequests to special beneficiaries. Any portion up to $25,000 of the minimum $150,000 exemption not used by the above preferred beneficiaries is to be allowed for exemption of bequests to a brother or sister of the deceased. It is, therefore, apparent that most beneficiaries of estates in British Columbia will be exempt from succession duty.

The government legislation will assist a family to carry on operation of a family-owned farm or business and is, therefore, introducing a provision to give the family a 10-year interest-free period to pay any succession duty which may be due on the passing of the farm or business to them.

Other amendments to the act are proposed to bring it generally into conformity with the provisions of the common succession duty act being introduced in most of the other provinces. These amendments provide:

1. Property outside the province left to a beneficiary in the province is to be subject to duty less any duty paid to a co-operating province.
2. In the case of a company controlled by the deceased, clarification of the valuation to be applied to shares and to debts and dispositions when passing to a person connected to the deceased by a blood relationship, marriage or adoption.
3. In the case of quick succession, provides for a reduction in valuation of from 10% to 50% on property on which duty has been paid under this Act if it passes again within five years.
4. The Act proposes a reduction in duty payable when a bequest was a gift on which gift tax had been paid.

British Columbia feels the succession duty rates are low. For example, for a close relative, after exemptions, on the first $50,000 of dutiable value the rate ranges from 3% to 8%. There is no revision of these low rates proposed to take up the 25% of the estate tax field dropped by the federal government.

The government takes the attitude that thrifty, industrious and prudent citizens of society need encouragement to continue their contribution to the economy of the province. The British Columbia succession duties, only applies to the very large estates as the basic exemptions outlined above will eliminate most beneficiaries.

A Creed We Could All Live By

We Believe.

- That faith in God gives meaning and purpose to human life;
- That the brotherhood of man transcends the sovereignty of nations
- That economic justice can best be won by free man through free enterprise
- That government should be of laws rather than of men;
- That earth's great treasure lies in human personality and
- That service to humanity is the best work of life.

This is the International Jaycee creed spoken in unison by 450,000 Jaycees in 86 world countries weekly or once a month depending on charter meetings.

The young men who make up the membership of Jaycee organizations are being trained to discharge authority and accept responsibility in today's highly competitive business world.

The basic effort by the Jaycees organization is to train young men with leadership training through community development.

These young men are the country's future leaders. They learn through working together with the aim of developing their communities through joint action.

TAX TIP

What may I claim on my income tax form as wages to my children for work on the farm?

Basically, you may claim an amount that was paid to your child if the child performed work which would have otherwise required the employment of hired help. Also, the amount paid must be in line with what would have been paid to a stranger, and the work done must be related to farm income.
